

Tumor seeding after open nephroureterectomy for ureteral transitional cell carcinoma

Giovanni Saredi, Corradino Di Pietro, Roberta Spasciani, Stefano De Stefani, Maria Chiara Sighinolfi, Salvatore Micali, and Giampaolo Bianchi

Department of Urology, Policlinico di Modena, University of Modena and Reggio Emilia, Modena, Italy

ABSTRACT

Skeletal muscle metastases following cancer surgery are rare. Few cases of abdominal wall metastasis have been reported in the literature and attributed to tumor seeding after laparoscopic surgery or percutaneous nephrostomy. We report a case of abdominal tumor seeding after open nephroureterectomy managed by means of a surgical and medical approach.

Key words: transitional cell carcinoma, metastasis, skeletal muscle, tumor seeding.

Correspondence to: Giovanni Saredi, Department of Urology, Policlinico di Modena, Via del Pozzo 71, 41100 Modena, Italy.

Tel +39-059-4224766;
fax +39-059-4222863;
e-mail dpc.mont@tiscali.it.

Received February 13, 2007;
accepted August 29, 2007.